Bears Will Destroy Dolphins

Unless the Bears decide to leave about 20 players at home next week, I don't see any way they will even have a tough time with the Miami Dolphins on Monday Night Football.

I realize the Dolphins are the defending AFC Champs and have one of the best passing attacks in the league, but they can be beaten and the Bears will beat them badly.

THERE ARE TWO major reasons why the Dolphins will have a tough time against the Bears. The first is the Bears' defense. The way this unit is playing, no opposing quarterback is safe unless he is sitting on the bench. If Dan Marino thinks he had a rough time vs. the 49ers in the Super Bowl last January, he hasn't seen anything yet. Buddy Ryan must be drooling as he plans his attack vs. Marino.

On offense, it really doesn't matter who plays quarterback for the Bears because Miami's defense is pure garbage. It was awful last year but somehow the Dolphins found a way to overcome the problems. The unit is worse this year. I wouldn't be surprised if Walter Payton rushed for over 200 yards. East St. Louis High School would be able to run the ball at will vs. the Dolphins.

The Bears are playing so well right now I find it hard to believe anyone can beat them unless they play like total fools. Their defense is so awesome it has John Madden falling out of the broadcast booth. And Steve Fuller has gotten into a groove on offense. Most people have forgotten that Jim McMahon has been sidelined with a shoulder injury for three weeks.

IT GOES WITHOUT question the Bears' running game is unstoppable. Walter Payton continues to shatter records and fullbacks Matt Suhey and Calvin Thomas continue to shock opposing defenses. Dennis Gentry and Thomas Sanders are also playing well. This may be the best group of running backs on one team in the past 20 years.

One of the amazing things about the Bears is they never know when to quit. It doesn't matter if they are playing the Cowboys or Wright Junior College. They prepare for every game like it is the Super Bowl. They don't know what the word letdown means. The intensity level stays at full force for the entire 60 minutes every week. That is why the Bears are so dominant in the second half. If the Bears have a commanding lead at the half, the opposing club might as well catch an early plane out of town.

I'm glad the Bears will get another chance to show the entire nation what type of team they have. They have been getting a lot of exposure of late and they love every minute of it. On Monday Night Football, they get to show fans all over the country how the game is played plus the members of 26 other NFL teams. I know the Bears will put on quite a show vs. the Dolphins.

Doug Buffone's selections for the 13th week of the regular season can be found on page 10 of this issue.

Payton Ties Another NFL Record

Bear Defense Continues To Maul Foes

By Mark Friedlander
Editor

Maybe NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle should issue a mandate stating the Bears must take the final four weeks of the regular season off so the upcoming opponents on their schedule won't be embarrassed like the last two have.

There was little doubt among football followers the Bears would have much trouble with the visiting Atlanta Falcons last Sunday. But it is still amazing they recorded their second consecutive shutout with the 36-0 victory before 61,769 shivering fans at Soldier Field.

COUPLED WITH THEIR 44-0 whitewash with the Cowboys two weeks ago, the Bears have outscored opponents 80-0 in the last eight quarters. They have allowed only three points in the last 13 quarters and it has been 14 quarters since an opponent has even scored a touchdown. No wonder the Bears are 12-0.

"The guys on this team haven't been a dominator in the league before. We like the feeling," said DT Steve McMichael.

"I said to some of the players on the sidelines, 'What would we do if we had to play against our defense?' I don't know," said QB Steve Fuller who started his third consecutive game in place of injured regular Jim McMahon (out with shoulder injury). "We've played against some very good offenses in recent weeks and our defense completely shuts them down. They can't beat you when that happens."

"THE WAY OUR DEFENSE is playing, it seems nothing is too hard and they're taking everything away from the other team. Defensively you can't do any better than shut them out," said head coach Mike Ditka.

Yet, hard as it may seem, there are still quite a few players on the Bears' defense who think they can get better. Are you listening Dan Marino?

"There's always room to get better," said LB Mike Singletary. "Today the running back (Gerald Riggs) got over 100 yards (110 on 30 carries). I didn't know he got over 100 yards. That's a little bit frustrating."

"WE HAVE TO GET better to win the Super Bowl," said CB Leslie Frazier. "If you become complacent with an undefeated regular season and then lose the Super Bowl, people will forget that you won all those games."

"If we start getting complacent, there will be problems," adds DL Dan Hampton. "As long as we keep a hungry attitude, then we'll be okay."

The way the Bears' defense is playing, they must be starving. For the third consecutive game, they held an opponent to under 172 yards as the Falcons compiled just 119. Besides Riggs, the Falcon offense was a joke. Atlanta had minus 22 yards in the net passing category as the Bears recorded five sacks including one for a safety. The Bear D also intercepted two passes.

NOT TO BE FORGOTTEN in this win was another outstanding performance by RB Walter Payton. He rushed for 102 yards on 20 carries, including a classic 40-yard touchdown run down the Bears' sideline. He tied an NFL record by compiling his seventh consecutive 100-yard game. That record is shared by O.J. Simpson and Earl Campbell and Payton has a chance to break it next Mon-

Success Begins With Scouting

The National Football League should have an award for Most Valuable Scouts. If the Bears are going to send half their team to the Pro Bowl, which they should, what does that make personnel director Bill Tobin and scouts Jim Farmer, Don King, and Rod Graves?

This is a league that honors executive of the year, coach of the year, player of the year, comeback player of the year, rookie of the year, offensive player of the year, defensive player of the year, special teams player of the year, kicker of the year, blocker of the year.

TWO AREAS ARE overlooked — assistant coaches and scouts.

Nobody in pro football works harder for less credit than assistant coaches and scouts. Shouldn't Ed Hughes, Buddy Ryan, Dick Stanfel, Johnny Roland, Ted Plumb, Dale Haupt, Jim LaRue, Steve Kazor, and Jim Dooley get to go to Hawaii, too? They went last year but had to work, as usual. This year, they should get to relax.

The scouts find the players and the coaches develop them. Some require less scouting and developing than others. But there can be no question that the Bears have done an excellent job of both in the 1980s.

THEIR SUCCESS IN 1985 is not a one-year phenomenon. They start nine No. 1 draft choices, more than anyone else in the league. They are Walter Payton, Steve Fuller or Jim McMahon, Jim Covert, Willie Gault, and Keith Van Horne on offense, and Dan Hampton, William Perry, Otis Wilson, and Wilber Marshall on defense.

There is not a No. 1 draft choice on the squad who is not starting, except for the backup quarterback. The Bears' No. 1's from 1975, 1979, 1980, 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984, and 1985 are on the field and producing. No other team can boast of such a record.

At midseason, the Cincinnati Bengals had 11 No. 1 draft choices on their roster, but only eight were starting. The Green Bay Packers and New England Patriots each had 10 No. 1 choices but only seven started. The Minnesota Vikings had nine No. 1's and eight started.

PRODUCTIVE NO. 1 choices are not the only key to success, of course. But they are a good place to start when you're looking for keys. Detroit rookie coach Darryl Rogers never had played the Bears before he put his finger on their obvious secret.

"They have a quarterback who has matured," said Rogers. "They have the best running back in the NFL. They have two No. 1 draft choices at their offensive tackles. That's five No. 1 draft choices that are producing.

"Then if they don't move the ball, they turn loose more No. 1 draft choices on defense."

AND NO. 2'S. Middle linebacker Mike Singletary was a No. 2 draft choice, but hardly a lucky one. The Bears were so sure they wanted Singletary, they traded up to get him.

Fullback Matt Suhey is a No. 2 who was no surprise. Former Eagles' coach Dick Vermeil lamented missing out on Suhey on the day of the draft.

The Bears have been so confident in their scouting that other teams are bound to treat them like E.F. Hutton. They have brought new meaning to the cliché "best athlete available."

IN 1982, WHEN they didn't see anyone they liked in the second round, they traded their pick to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers for a No. 1 in 1983. The Bucs chose a defensive end named Booker Reese, whom they soon traded. The Bears waited until 1983 and drafted Gault.

In 1985, they were not looking for a placekicker on the fourth round of the draft. But when Georgia's Kevin Butler was on the board, the Bears had him rated so much higher than anyone else at any other position that they couldn't ignore their own advice. Butler soon proved them right.

Other teams scoffed when the Bears made Perry their top pick in 1985. Others said he was a second-rounder at best. It turned out the Bears got a two-way player, more than they had bargained for. And he weighed less than anyone else expected, too.

IN THE LAST two second rounds, the Bears have drafted linebacker Ron Rivera and cornerback Reggie Phillips. The jury remains out on both, but the Bears remain confident that they will pan out.

Tobin and head coach Mike Ditka were so convinced that Perry was a player that they won over general manager Jerry Vainisi and president Michael McCaskey.

Tobin and Ditka didn't know each other at all when Ditka was hired in 1982. Tobin had been with the Bears since 1975. They soon found out they liked the same type of players, because they were the same type of players themselves — tough, aggressive, no-nonsense.

"WE BELIEVE SO much alike it's a little bit scary," said Tobin. "You're either a striker or a catcher in football. We look for strikers."

The top rounds are not the only place to make hay. It was Tobin who discovered Richard Dent in the eighth round and was not afraid to label him "the best pass rusher I graded all year." Tobin said that before Dent became one of the best pass rushers in the NFL, not after.

When Steve McMichael was cut by the New England Patriots, Tobin immediately lobbied with former general manager Jim Finks and coach Neill Armstrong to pick him up. The Bears were not looking for defensive linemen at the time, so Tobin tried to convince them he might make a good center.

"HIS INTENSITY WAS what you had to like," said Tobin. "Don't ask me why New England cut him."

McMichael soon proved he could play defensive tackle and Ditka made sure he was on the field. Now McMichael should be on his way to the Pro Bowl. Tobin and his staff shouldn't be far behind.

"Bill Tobin and his department deserve tremendous credit," said Ditka. "They've taken some criticism. They might as well get the credit. What Bill Tobin and Jim Finks drafted was outstanding."

TRADEMARK

Depth Is Never-Ending For Bears

As the 12-0 Bears await the Miami Dolphins on Monday night, it is becoming more apparent every week balance is the key to this year's success.

Last Sunday in the 36-0 rout of the Atlanta Falcons, one hardly noticed Jim McMahon was missing and Steve Fuller was calling the shots. One hardly noticed Calvin Thomas, not Matt Suhey, was Walter Payton's running mate in the backfield. And one hardly noticed Stefan Humphries was subbing for Mark Bortz. Thomas scored in a short yardage situation as the Bears never missed a beat to extend their unbeaten record and keep in sight that perfect 19-0 season. If it happens, it'll be because the players fit the system so perfectly injuries and defenses no longer bother them.

THE DEFENSE HAS now played nine consecutive

By Dick

quarters without surrendering a single point. The win locked up the first home field playoff game for the Bears since 1963 when they whipped the New York Giants at Wrigley Field to capture the NFL title.

The back-to-back shutouts of 44-0 at Dallas and 36-0 vs. the Falcons are the first back-to-back shutouts by a Bear defensive team since 1942 when the old Monsters won 42-0 at Detroit and 47-0 over Cleveland in Chicago.

The Bears' defense will get a stiff test at Miami according to Dan Hampton.

"I THINK THEY have the best offense in football. They've got a quarterback in Dan Marino who can get hot against a blitzing defense and he's got great wideouts to throw to," said Hampton.

Otis Wilson summed up the approach to the game with the Dolphins.

QUARTERBACK STEVE FULLER has led the Bears to three consecutive victories as a starter. (Bear Report photo by Jonathan Daniel)

DEFENSIVE TACKLE WILLIAM Perry (72) tries to elude Atlanta guard Jeff Kiewel. (Bear Report photo by Jonathan Daniel)

"As long as our corners hold up in our blitzing defense, we're going to be tough to beat," he said. Hampton added, "As long as we control what we do, we don't worry about what they do."

THE LAST TIME the Bears visited Miami, they got scalped in the heat of the Orange Bowl, 31-16, on September 23, 1979. But this is a different Bear team. They are the team challenging the Dolphins' mark as the last NFL team to go undefeated and win a Super Bowl. If you think the Bears aren't confident, consider the fact Wilson ran onto the field against Atlanta WITHOUT his helmet on! That's confidence.

But it's the interchanging of personnel which amazes those of us who cover this team. They substitute without suffering. Against Atlanta, Andy Frederick took out not one, not two, but three Falcons with one block. Fuller was so efficient out there he was hardly noticed until the second quarter. Things are running so smoothly that in the last two weeks, the game was over early in the second half.

One reason the subs are playing so well may be they want to stay on a winner, a team with a great future. When a team goes 12-0, the coach isn't likely to change players often if at all. The subs know when their chance arrives, they better take full advantage of it. That's why guys like Fuller, Thomas, Humphries and Frederick are playing so well.

ONE WOULD THINK filling in on an unbeaten team would put pressure on the substitute. With the Bears it works the other way. This team has the quality athletes it takes to step in and not skip a beat. Losing Al Harris and Todd Bell could have devastated this defensive unit. But Dave Duerson and Wilber Marshall have more than replaced the veteran starters and actually out-performed Harris and Bell's projected contribution.

Duerson said last Sunday it'll be difficult to give up his starting role next year if Bell returns. Matter of fact he feels he wouldn't want to go back to the bench. Marshall was drafted as a great athlete out of Florida and, like Wilson before him, spent a year on the sidelines watching how Buddy Ryan's defense works. He learned fast. Wilson is a sure Pro Bowl starter this year. Can Marshall be far behind?

Another case can be made for tight end Tim Wrightman. Subbing for Emery Moorehead, the ex-USFL player has frequently come up with catches and subsequent runs that remind many of a young Mike Ditka. Wrightman is a bull who takes on a tackler and punishes him before he can be punished. Against Atlanta, Wrightman had three catches for 40 yards. Only Willie Gault had more yards (70) and only Walter Payton matched his catch total.

THE BEARS ARE 12-0 after losing their starting quarterback for three weeks and losing two starters off their

Special to the BEAR REPORT

ORCHARD PARK, NY — There's an old saying that you can't take a fish out of water and that also applies to the Miami Dolphins who are known for having problems playing in cold weather.

But a game-time temperature of 34 degrees and a nasty wind off of Lake Erie didn't seem to bother the Dolphins last Sunday as they recorded a 23-14 victory over the lowly Buffalo Bills. It was a crucial win for the Dolphins because it keeps them just one game behind the N.Y. Jets in the tough AFC Central race. Both the Dolphins and the Patriots have 8-4 records while the Jets are still on top at 9-3.

ONE OF THE MOST amazing aspects of Miami's latest victory, its third straight, was the way the offense operated. As usual, QB Dan Marino had a fine game (22 of 31 for 233 yards and two touchdowns) but the Dolphins also sported a powerful rushing attack. They amassed 172 yards on the ground led by Tony Nathan's 77. Fullback Woody Bennett compiled 59 rushing yards.

"We got our running game going today. We always felt we could run the ball," said Miami head coach Don Shula.

"We were so content with Marino's passing last year that we didn't work hard enough on the running game.

It caught up with us in the Super Bowl," Shula said. MARINO REALIZES THE Dolphins will need a solid rushing attack vs. the Bears next Monday night.

"We're going to have to run against the Bears. They have such a good pass rush," he said.

The Dolphins came into the Buffalo game with the 21st-rated rushing attack in the league and the second best passing attack. Miami's offense ranks second in the league overall behind Air Coryell.

EVEN THOUGH MIAMI ran the ball quite well vs. the Bills, there is no question the club's passing attack is still its no. 1 offensive weapon. When Marino gets hot, there is no better quarterback in the league. Through 11 weeks, he ranked fifth in the AFC in passing with a 79.5 rating. His only problem this year has been throwing interceptions. He has had a league-high 17 passes picked off.

When Marino is on target, he has some outstanding people to throw to. Wide receiver Mark Clayton leads the club in receiving with 56 catches for 795 yards. Nathan ranks second with 54 receptions for 512 yards. Wide-out Mark Duper, who missed eight contests with a leg injury, has been sparkling since he returned to action three weeks ago. He has now caught 21 passes for 433 yards. Against the Jets on Nov. 10, his first game back, he caught eight passes for 217 yards and two TDs to set a Dolphin record.

"For awhile, I was skeptical about coming back to play because my leg still hurt," Duper said. "In my own mind, I didn't think that I could run like I did against the Jets."

MARINO ALSO GETS the ball to a variety of other people including TE Bruce Hardy and rookie running back Ron Davenport. Against the Bills, Davenport scored on a seven-yard pass.

Amazingly, Marino has been sacked only 12 times this year despite a injury-riddled offensive line. The line, which recently lost starting guard Jeff Toews (knee) and tackle Cleveland Green (severe ankle sprain) is down to just five healthy players. There are no backups.

Nathan leads the club's rushing attack with 480 yards. His backup, Lorenzo Hampton, ranks second with 357 yards.

MIAMI'S DEFENSE, which ranked 27th in the league going into the Buffalo contest, has also been bit with the injury bug. Among the regulars on I-R are DT Bob Baumhower, LB Charles Bowser and safety Mike Kozlowski. Linebacker Hugh Green, acquired in a trade from the Buccaneers a few weeks back, has been a welcome addition to the club. He recorded two sacks vs. the Bills. DE Doug Betters leads the team in sacks with 5.5.

Miami has only intercepted 12 passes and safety Glenn Blackwood leads the team with three.

Rookie placekicker Fuad Reveiz is having a fine year. He has connected on 18 of 21 field goal attempts including one from 22 yards out vs. the Bills. Punter Reggie Roby ranks second in the league with a 44.6 record average. Kickoff returner Lorenzo Hampton ranks sixth with a 22.9 average.

The Dolphins know they must beat the Bears next Monday night in order to stay in the AFC Central race.

"The Bears are the hot team in football right now. We're going to line up and give it a go," Shula said.

Road Headquarters

The Bears will arrive in Miami on Sunday and will be headquartered at the Sheraton River House. While in Miami, the team is not planning to hold a workout.

Ditka Uses the 'Basic' Approach To Winning

Mike Ditka never did have aspirations to be a head coach in the NFL. His goal was more specific. He wanted to coach the Bears.

Now that he does, he says, the biggest compliment a person can give him is that he coaches the Bears. Coming back to coach the Bears, he said, was "the fulfillment of a dream."

"THAT'S ALL I wanted to do," he says. "I always thought it was important when I played with the Bears. The first time I ever put the jersey on, I felt pretty good, and the last time, I felt pretty bad."

The Bears are more than just another NFL team to Ditka. The other 27 issue paychecks that are just as negotiable, but they don't issue uniforms that stand for life's basic values. To Ditka, being a Bear means being a hard worker, aggressive and tough. And a winner. He will have it no other way.

That's what it meant when he got out of college at Pitt in 1961. Ditka says the only two places he wanted to play were Pittsburgh and Chicago. Tough places. Dallas hasn't been that kind of place since the last cattle rustler dangled from a tree limb.

DITKA IDENTIFIED WITH people who had dirty fingernails and calloused fingertips. Even now, he says those are the people who best identify with the Bears. He mentions several steel towns: Pittsburgh, Birmingham, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre. "Good work areas, where people know what it's all about," he says.

They're people who know hard work means moving something heavier than sheets of paper and cups of coffee from one place to another. They're people more comfortable with grime than glitter, with hard hitting than high tech.

"That's the kind of player I was," Ditka says. "I wasn't too fancy."

DITKA CALLS HIMSELF basic. He says it in a self-deprecating way, but not an apologetic way. You work hard, you make money, you eat. That's basic.

You knock over the man in front of you, you move the ball, you win. That's basic, too. You can't trick the man in front of you instead of knocking him over, that's OK, too.

Basic doesn't mean unimaginative. Basic means respect for what's important. It's the mark of a smart man to reduce a complex game to its basics, to the bottom line of beating the guys in front of you.

"THERE ARE COACHES that sometimes maybe make the game harder than it is," Ditka says. "It's not that hard. If you've got good people and you believe in what you're doing, give them a chance to do it."

"If I didn't believe in that totally, I'm believing it more and more. It's what they're doing on the field, not what you're doing on the sideline."

It's the players that win. That's basic, too, but coaches do forget it. Tom Landry forgets it. As he often says, it was Ditka who reminded him a coach has to "rely on the player to get the job done," that the player was more important than the system.

By Kevin

HE'S A BEAR. Ditka coached and played 13 years under Landry at Dallas. Even then, Ditka says Landry often told him he really was a Bear. Always was, always will be.

"He was tough," Landry says. "He was one of the great tight ends I've ever seen because he was tough. His toughness brought a lot to our coaching staff, too."

Ditka jokes at the line that some coaches think too much. "I could never be accused of that," he says. He's too basic.

HIS OFFENSE IS similar to Dallas', with the men in motion and multiple formations and trick plays. But it differs in two ways. Ditka is more inclined to run the ball down a team's throat, and to keep repeating the same play.

"If I find something working like I did in San Francisco, we used it about nine times in the fourth quarter. You have to do those things."

"First of all, our guys get a lot of confidence. They get excited when they run the ball and it works. They want to keep coming back to it."

DITKA SAYS HE used to argue with Landry. "Why do you always assume that the defense always knows what we're going to do? Why do we assume they can stop anything before they stop it? So what if they're ready for it? They've still got to stop it."

"That's like if we put a reverse pass to Walter (Payton) in one week, we usually won't carry it the next week. It's foolish. The next week you should open the game with it."

"Sameness isn't good unless it's working. But when it's working, it's real good. Even in '63, we did the same things over and over."

THE REFERENCES TO 1963, the Bears' last championship season, don't come so often now. Finally, the Bears' future looks as bright as the past.

But when Ditka returned, it was important to remind the players their team hadn't always been a doormat. "We needed price in this organization," safety Gary Fencik says.

Ditka gave it to them. He told them how the Bear uniform was special. He told them about how the Bears used to stand for excellence, a faint memory in 1982 after two winning seasons in the last 15. He expected things to change right away.

"MY EXPECTATIONS WERE too high early," he says. He was impatient. In his second year, he made some bad changes at quarterback and he broke his hand hitting a locker in defeat. He was frustrated, and there was no guy across from him to beat up.

Ditka says he learned not to take games personally late in his second season, when the Bears won five of their last six. As a player, he had taken every game personally. He considered it an insult to be beaten by the guy across from him, and he wasn't insulted often. As coach, Ditka had his first job he couldn't do better simply by doing it harder.

Ditka's Approach

Besides, he took his responsibility seriously. He still does. George Halas had hired him near the end of Halas' life in his final attempt to make the Bears the Bears again. To do that, he needed a real Bear. To do it in the 1980s, he needed a real Bear who used his head for more than a ramrod. To Halas' credit, he knew Ditka was that person when others saw him as a man who couldn't hold onto his clipboard.

THE BEARS WEREN'T the first team to bring back an old playing hero to lift the franchise from the ashheap. The Packers have tried it with Bart Starr and Forrest Gregg, the Lions with Joe Schmidt, the Giants with Alex Webster. It rarely works.

It is working in Chicago because Ditka blends the old values with the new tactics. The coach who is proud of Chicago has seen Chicago return the compliment, itching to carry him on its big shoulders. Ditka could be the city's first Republican mayor in eons if he wanted. He would rather be the Bears' only five-year head coach besides Halas.

He has stocked the Bears with his kind of player. "Any guy that's tough, aggressive, is not going to give up," he says. "I don't mind bitching. That's life. Everybody bitches. I just don't like guys that are taking short cuts."

"I JUST WANT a guy who's a stand-up guy, who'll play as hard as he can. He doesn't have to be fancy or cute."

He just has to win. What could be more basic than that? If Ditka has mellowed, that's the main reason. Winning isn't frustrating.

"I think he's really come to trust the players on this team," Fencik says. "They've come to accept the responsibility to do what it takes to go to the Super Bowl." As Ditka told them so often, nothing else is important.

Morrissey Is Happy He Got Another Chance

Jim Morrissey is happy to be on a Chicago Bears team which appears to be well on its way to the rewards — both tangible and intangible — that go with post-season success.

But when you see Morrissey going about his special teams work with good results, it's easy to forget that he was cut by the Bears earlier this year.

WHEN THE TEAM was at a roster level of 49 a week before the regular season opener, there were still four more players who needed to be released, because of the new 45-man limit. Morrissey was one of those last four to go.

He needs just 27 credits to finish his bachelor's degree in food systems management at Michigan State University, so he was back home in Flint, MI preparing to enroll at East Lansing to finish off his degree.

By

Often a player's being at the right place at the right time can make all the difference in his being reclaimed, and in Morrissey's case, luck — in the form of a rainfall — proved to be on his side when veteran linebacker Brian Cabral was injured.

EIGHT INCHES OF rain had fallen in Flint the night before he was to leave for nearby MSU, so instead of traveling that day Morrissey was at home cleaning up a watery mess in the family basement.

He was literally waist-deep in water when the call came from Bill Tobin, the Bears' director of player personnel. Tobin wanted to know if Morrissey could travel to Chicago immediately if the Bears decided to recall him.

Morrissey, with water ripples still clinging to him, assured Tobin that yes, indeed, he could be there right away if the decision was made in his favor. An hour later, general manager Jerry Vainisi was on the telephone giving Morrissey the go-ahead to return to Chicago. Morrissey did so at once, leaving the flooded basement — to say nothing of his earlier disappointment at being cut — behind him.

HE KNOWS, HOWEVER, that his tenure with the Bears is far from a safe one, even though all he missed was the first week of the regular season.

"The other shoe could drop at any time," he acknowledges. "You never know. It's a week-by-week situation. All I can do is keep trying my best. I take pride in playing special teams, doing what I'm supposed to do."

"It's a way to get your shot," continues Morrissey, who aspires to play linebacker for the Bears, "a way to get your break. It's a way to get noticed by the coaches, a way for them to see if I can play in this league."

"IT'S A WAY TO see if I can take a step up the ladder. Playing special teams can make you or break you. You're going full-tilt and it can last only five seconds, so you have to show what you have, show what you're made of, within that short time."

Morrissey's performances have impressed special teams' coach Steve Kazor.

"Jim plays on virtually all of what we call the running special teams — kickoff, kickoff return, punt, punt return," describes Kazor.

"HE'S ON ALL four of those right now and he's grading out well. I don't think he had played special teams in college. Most of the guys on special teams were stars in college, so this is a transition for them. A lot of players have trouble making the adjustments — mostly psychological, not physical, but not Jim," Kazor adds.

Honors were indeed a part of Morrissey's career at Michigan State, where he had been an All-Big Ten selection.

The 1984 season at MSU was a banner one for him. A team captain, Morrissey was the Spartans' most valuable player and was voted State's outstanding defensive player. He had a season total of 137 tackles, which swelled his career total to 329, second-best in Michigan State football history.

"JIM'S PHYSICAL abilities are good; but he does have limitations in a couple of areas — strength and size," says Kazor. "His height, 6-3, is okay, but he's going to have to play at least at 225 to stay in this league. He's not going to carry much more than 235 pounds; that would be

"He can keep his speed at that weight — 235 — and he needs to really dedicate himself to the weights in the off-season. He has to have more strength, though. That's what he's going to have to do to play linebacker in this league," Kazor adds.

"For him to step up and take on a William Perry-type of guy at the goal line... well, right now, that'd be tough for him to do. But that's what he's going to have to do."

"BUT JIM CAN do it. He's a highly intelligent young man with a good solid academic background at Michigan State. He needs some more self-confidence, but he's getting more of that every day. He's an adaptive, intelligent player with ability."

Kazor especially likes Morrissey's special teams play on kickoffs, when Morrissey flies down the field to punish or be punished.

"To me," the coach says, "Being on the kickoff team is a frame of mind, an attitude."

"You have to want to do the job. You have to want it. To me, that's a true test of football. If you can be on the kickoff team, then you can learn to do other things. You go down the field and you defeat one, maybe two men and you are in the play."

"To me that's a great test of guts. One thing you notice about Jim Morrissey — who does have a lot of guts — is his all-out spirit. He goes all-out in everything for us. The greatest step in football is going from college to professional. If Jim Morrissey can add to his size and strength, then he can make that step."

Bears Win

day night vs. the Dolphins.

"There's not a guy in the NFL who deserves a record like that more than Walter Payton," says center Jay Hilgenberg. "Hopefully we can do it on national TV and show all of America what kind of running back he is."

"He's the greatest running back who ever lived and he proves it Sunday in and Sunday out," said OT Jim Covert. "If anybody thinks anything different, they're nuts."

BOTH PAYTON AND Ditka would be thrilled if Sweetness gets the record while O.J. is up in the broadcast booth. During the preseason, Simpson knocked Payton saying he wasn't in tip-top playing shape. A few weeks later, Simpson ripped Ditka's play-calling.

"As callous as a guy I am, I'm determined to get Walter his eighth next week and his ninth the following," said Ditka. "Because when his name goes down, it should go down alone ahead of those other guys."

"I would love that," Payton said when asked if he would like to set the record with O.J. in attendance.

TO SOME, IT APPEARS these Bear victories are as easy as taking candy from a baby. But Payton has a different point of view.

"Most people only see what happens on Sunday," he said. "They don't come out there Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday when we're fighting off all the aches and bruises. They don't see Mike (Ditka) yell and swear and see all of the guys running into each other and fighting each other."

But when it comes to Sunday, the Bears aren't even in the same league as most of the other teams. Atlanta was probably thrilled it was tied with the Bears at zero after the first 15 minutes last Sunday. But once the Bears got on the board early in the second quarter, the rout was on.

ON THE SECOND play of the second quarter, placekicker Kevin Butler opened the game's scoring with a 35-yard field goal. That three-pointer was set up with a 51-yard drive which included a 17-yard run by FB Calvin Thomas. With Matt Suhey out with a bruised back (sustained in the first quarter), Thomas saw considerable action in the contest.

A few minutes later, a 32-yard field goal by Butler made it 6-0. That drive, which covered 41 yards on 10 plays, included an 18-yard pass from Fuller to TE Emery Moorehead.

Midway through the quarter, the Bears began their first touchdown drive. They got a quick 30 yards on a pass interference call assessed to Atlanta's Scott Case, who bumped WR Dennis McKinnon. On the ensuing play, Payton raced 40 yards into the end zone to make it 13-0. McKinnon provided a key block on the touchdown run.

KEY PASSES BY FULLER set up the next Bear touchdown. With 3:08 left before the half, he opened the drive with a 20-yard strike to WR Willie Gault. He followed that with a 50-yard pass to the speedster who got the ball down to the one-yard line.

"It was a bootleg play and Willie ran a very good clearing route. Anytime you connect on a long one, it feels real good," said Fuller.

"I hadn't caught a big one like that since the Minnesota game in September," said Gault.

WITH THE BALL first-and-goal at the one, the Bears turned to the NFL's newest hero, William "Refrigerator" Perry. Taking a page out of the Payton playbook, Perry leaped into the end zone to make it 20-0 Bears.

"It was something I wanted to do because Dallas cut me last week," said the Fridge. "I decided to go over the top this time. I saw the Atlanta corner coming to cut me

Deadline Passes

Since the Bears did not sign holdout veterans Todd Bell and Al Harris by last Saturday's deadline, the two players will not be eligible to play for the team this season. Both players' contracts expired after last season. The team could still sign the players before the end of the year but they would not be eligible to play until the 1986 season.

and I just dove over. Once I got up in the air, everybody rolled out of the way."

"It was a great call by the coach," said Ditka with a chuckle.

IN THE THIRD quarter, the Falcons decided to switch quarterbacks. It was kind of a strange move considering starter Dave Archer hadn't even been given much of a chance to throw the ball. But the Bears didn't mind that Bob Holly took over the controls. On a third-and-eight at the Atlanta eight, DE Richard Dent forced Holly to fumble and the ball was recovered by Mike Hartenstine at the Falcon two. On the next play, Thomas scored on a two-yard run to make it 27-0.

"When you put pressure on a quarterback like that, it forces mistakes," said Dent.

By this time, the Falcons had already surrendered. All head coach Dan Henning wanted to do was get Riggs his 100 yards which finally happened late in the game. He obviously doesn't understand teams are supposed to try to win games.

"THEY REALIZED IT was going to be hard to throw the football against our defense," Ditka said.

Early in the fourth quarter, the Bears increased their lead to 29-0 when reserve DE Henry Waechter sacked Holly in the end zone. Waechter led the Bears with three sacks.

"I was impressed with the way our backup people played," said Ditka. "We gave Henry a game ball. We're gonna ask him to make a pass rush film for Hampton and McMichael and the other guys so they learn how to rush the passer."

LATE IN THE contest, the Bears made it 36-0 when reserve RB Thomas Sanders scored on a one-yard run. That drive, which covered 59 yards on 11 plays, was directed by third-string QB Mike Tomczak. The rookie out of Ohio State got to play most of the final quarter and completed three of five passes for 45 yards.

When the Bears are dominating opponents, it gives Ditka the chance to play everybody on the team.

"These kinds of games are very hard to explain," Ditka said. "We didn't know what to make of this game going in and we talked about it last night with the team. I didn't know if it would be hard or easy, I'll be honest with you."

GAME NOTES: The Bears' 12-0 start, the third best in NFL history, is the best in the league since 1972 when the Dolphins went 14-0 in the regular season and won two playoff games and the Super Bowl to finish with a perfect 17-0 record. In 1934, the Bears went 13-0 but lost the NFL title game. . . . The Bears are 7-0 at Soldier Field this season and have won 16 of their last 18 at home. . . . The Bears have outscored their last three opponents 104-3. The Bears are plus-232 in point differential. . . . Safety Gary Fencik recorded the 35th interception of his career and is just two shy of Richie Petitbon's all-time Bear mark. . . . Under Mike Ditka, the Bears are 27-4 when leading after three quarters. The Bears have led 11 of 12 games this season heading into the fourth quarter. . . . The Bears' narrowest margin of victory was the 16-10 win at Green Bay on Nov. 3. . . . Steve Fuller has a 5-2 record as a Bears' starting quarterback. . . . The Bears' defense has allowed just 10 second half points in the last nine games. . . . The Bears have held a time of possession lead in 35 of the last 36 games. . . . They have outrushed 31 of their last 34 opponents and have outsacked 27 of their last 30. . . . The Bears and Dolphins, both 27-7, share the best record in the NFL over the last 34 games. . . . Previously, rookie QB Mike Tomczak had not gotten a chance to throw a pass in a regular season game. "Mike owed it to me," Tomczak said. . . . There have been 14 consecutive sellouts at Soldier Field. Even though game time temperature was 22 degrees, there were only 4,021 no shows. . . . Placekicker Kevin Butler has connected on 15 of his last 16 field goal attempts and has scored 107 points.

Falcons' Game Plan Aids the Bears

By Wally Gullick
BEAR REPORT Staff

Not even the next-to-last appearance from the Honey Bears, who were given center stage at half time of Sunday afternoon's decaying of the Atlanta Falcons, could keep fans from making early exits.

Who could blame those who chose an early departure. The Bears have reached the point where the lack of competition from the enemy has inflicted boredom. In the last two weeks, the unbeaten Bears have outscored opponents 80-0. The verdict of each contest has been secured by intermission.

THE FALCONS, FRESH from the help of five Los Angeles Rams' turnovers, landed upon the frozen Soldier Field turf with the intent of a second straight upset.

A scoreless duel was the result after the first 15 minutes. But fifteen minutes later, the game was history. The Bear attack lit up the scoreboard with 20 second-quarter points, featuring a pair of Kevin Butler field goals, a 40-yard TD gallop by Walter Payton and a one-yard William Perry dive produced six more.

Atlanta's plan of attack after it received the opening second half kickoff illustrated what kind of hopes the visitors had for making a comeback. Leslie Frazier picked off David Archer's overthrown pass to open the second half and Atlanta skipper Dan Henning showed him the bench. He then ordered back-up signal caller Bob Holly to operate a one-dimensional offense via one player, the NFL's leading rusher, Gerald Riggs.

Ten of 12 third quarter plays were handoffs to Riggs, who made the most of the opportunities to collect 45 of his game-high 110 yards. But the ground control tactic wasn't going to get the Falcons back into the game.

HENNING DEFENDED his play-calling weakly.

"We were unsuccessful at picking up the pressure of their pass rush and felt that running the ball at that point in time was the best operation," he said.

Not exactly a lot of confidence for second-year starter David Archer or the inexperienced Holly, who teamed to produce minus 22 net yards passing. Atlanta receivers caught only three passes for 16 yards, but five Bears sacks grounded the Falcons for 38 yards.

"THERE WAS A condition out there that makes it very difficult for David Archer or anybody else. I don't think it's a question of evaluating our quarterback. It's just a simple case that their defensive team is better than our offensive team," said Henning in a tone that indicated he doesn't exactly have a scoop.

"The one guy we have out there on our offensive unit that is in a class with theirs is Gerald Riggs and I think under the 'conditions, he did the best job he could do,'" Henning added.

Being the sacrificial lamb sort of speaks for a team that has now lost 10 of 12 games. Riggs still manages to hold his head up and is used to getting his number called no matter what the score or regardless of the stage of the game. He has come to expect teams to consider him as a marked man.

"WE HAVE WORKED all year long to pride ourselves on our running game. We try to come out and hammer people and in me being one of the bigger backs in the league, we're going to call my number," sighed Riggs in a tone that was reminiscent of Walter Payton in the days when Bear fans were leaving games early out of grief and frustration.

Looking for a bright moment, Riggs could savor the fact despite the beating his team took, he was able to outrush the game's all-time greatest runner on a day he would tie a mark for most consecutive 100-yard games with his seventh.

"It's something that people dream of. I was able to outrush him. It's special to me. I'm playing full-time and am able to hang with the best of them," said Riggs.

IT'S ALMOST AS though Atlanta played the second half as a one-on-one duel between Riggs and Payton, which Riggs captured, 110-102. In relying on just Riggs, the Falcons were one step away from attacking the Chicago defense as linebacker Otis Wilson suggested opponents should attack the Bears' machine-like unit.

"If I was another offense, how would I attack the Bears? I wouldn't show up," joked Wilson, who demonstrated his confidence by trotting out for one defensive series without his helmet.

"You've got to come out with at least 14 guys on the field to block our guys, because 11 won't be enough," added Wilson who is still playing with the same reckless abandon he employed when he took it as a personal insult to the club when Dallas was made favorite two weeks ago despite the Bears' 10-0 mark.

HE WILL CONTINUE to wear his helmet though, even if he needs a reminder from Mike Hartenstein to bring it with him.

"I'm crazy, but not that crazy," said Wilson who felt he'd resort to tackling with his hands if he had lined up without realizing he didn't have the head gear.

The Falcons never had any equipment woes, but Wilson questioned their approach for a second half comeback.

"ATLANTA'S FORTE IS to run the ball. They give it to Gerald Riggs but we're the best team at stopping the run. It doesn't sound well. I won't say what I want to say," grinned Wilson with a winning smile he's had practice in using this season.

Coach Mike Ditka called off the troops with another rout in sight, but it didn't matter. Rookie WR Mike Tomczak completed his first pass, and a bit later directed a 59-yard march that produced the final touchdown, a one-yard score by rookie RB Thomas Sanders. It is Sanders' first pro touchdown.

The many heroics could have prompted the awarding of numerous game balls, but the Bears chose to award the top one to a 41-year-old Rockford man, Jim Harris. The former public works employee is a devoted Bear fan who is on his death bed. Last week, he phoned the Bears' offices with the hopes of talking to a couple of his heroes. Payton called him last Saturday night.

Said a teary-eyed Payton after the game, "He probably won't even be around to see us in the Super Bowl."

Depth

defensive unit of one year ago. That calls for depth and quality athletes which the Bears now have in abundance.

This team is getting scary to watch. You keep wondering how good they really are. They were expected to lose at San Francisco. They were sure to lose at Dallas. In those two games, the defense did not allow a touchdown. Now people wonder about the Miami game. And then the Jets game.

But the Bears don't wonder about any of this. They simply suit up and play. They come out ready, and high and confident every week. If somebody goes down, the substitute becomes a star. That's how it is when a team is loaded. This Bear team is loaded. They look destined to win it all in 1985. If they do, part of the reason will be this is a 45-man team, not 22, or 28 or 35. Ditka has pressed the right buttons all year. He controls a machine which continues to roll through one opponent after another.

Where it will stop, nobody knows.

A New Award

Schick razors and blades, which annually presents the Schick Trophy to the NFL's Most Valuable Player as selected by the Professional Football Writers of America (PFWA), is adding a new award to its sport marketing programs, it was announced by John Walsh, Vice President of Marketing for Consumer Health Products Group, Warner-Lambert Co., the makers of Schick razors and blades.

The new Schick/PFWA Player of the Month Award, which will be determined by a monthly poll of the PFWA, will be a check for $1,000, given in the recipient's name to his favorite charity.

"SPONSORING THIS NEW award is a very important addition to Schick's growing sports marketing programs," Walsh said. "We are pleased to honor the great performers in professional football, and we are extremely happy that America's charities will be rewarded by these players' achievements."

This November will be the first month that a player will be honored with the Schick/PFWA Player of the Month Award.
